2016 FAIR IN REVIEW

DELAWARE COUNTY FAIR

WE HAD GREAT FUN AT THE County Fair

EDITOR'S NOTE

These results were updated as of Sept. 29, 2016. As many classes as possible were listed. The exceptions were when results were not available for every class; or in some cases, several winners were listed. When an exhibitor won similar multiple classes, we sometimes listed the classes together.

Horse events labors of love

By Lenny C. Lepola
newsguy@ee.net

It cannot be said often enough, 4-H and FFA County Fair Equestrian projects can be expensive and are often thankless pursuits.

Exhibitors spend years growing into their sport, honing skills, and training animals.

But once they arrive at the fair, there's no huge crowd cheering them on, just family and friends. Exhibitors don't go home with thousands of dollars in their pockets from selling project animals at Market Sale; and the day after the fair is over, they still have horses to feed and groom and train and clean up after.

All of that said, most equestrian exhibitors would tell you that their game is a labor of love and all the time and energy and money invested in equestrian project animals is a small price to pay for the mostly intangible rewards they receive in return.

While the number of equestrian exhibitors has decreased, this year was a typical year at the Delaware County Fair for 4-H and FFA members at the fairground's Main 4-H Equestrian Show Ring. Other than a light rain at the beginning of Saturday's Parade of Colors, the weather was near perfect. There were the usual family members, friends, and a few casual spectators stopping on their way to and from the parking lots, and the business inside the show ring was serious.

With horse projects, unlike other fair animals that are judged for fitness for market, equestrian judges rate how Junior Fair Horse Show exhibitors present animals during English and Western horse and pony events.

Reporter Lenny C. Lepola can be reached at 614-266-6093.

Sunbury Halter & Saddle 4-H Club is the oldest equestrian 4-H club in Delaware County, and typically takes home more than its fair share of ribbons, plaques, and other prizes during each year's Delaware County Junior Fair Horse Show. Front row, from left, are Joel Bauman, Tara Shuster, Kason Knapp, Lena Bauman, Olivia Cardi, Dylon Delany, Jocie Cardi; back row, from left, are Jessica Haynes, Emma Haynes, Madison Laughery, Kelly Kreager, Kody Knapp, Lily Bauman, Lauren Thiergartner, Anton Delany, and Maura Flanagan.

Each year the Delaware County Fair Junior Fair Horse Show opens with a Saturday evening Parade of Colors. Members of 4-H Clubs participating in the four days of equestrian events enter the Junior Fair Equestrian Arena displaying club flags and banners. It was raining Sat. 17, but folks who ride horses ride in all weathers. Leading this year's parade were, from left, Aimee Dill of Successful Strides 4-H Club carrying the American Flag, and Clara Selle of Barrels Rails & Such 4-H Club. Not show is Alexis Poultin of Delaware Trailblazers 4-H Club carrying the 4-H Flag.

Smith repeats Versatility win

Lenny C. Lepola | The News

Buckeye Valley High School senior Grace Smith, a member of Cowboy Convoy 4-H Club, won Versatility last year and repeated this year.

By Lenny C. Lepola
newsguy@ee.net

The Versatility event that closes out serious competition at the Delaware County Fair Junior Fair Horse Show is not for the faint of heart.

Competitors typically enter the show ring under sunny skies at 5:30 p.m., and stay in the ring performing their final events under lights. It's well after 9 p.m. when the results are tabulated and the winner is announced.

Contestants qualify for Versatility during three days of equestrian competitions, and once in the ring they perform Showmanship, Equitation, Pleasure, and Reining classes with tack and clothing changes between events. They finish the evening Barrel Racing.

Buckeye Valley High School senior Grace Smith, a member of Cowboy Convoy 4-H Club, won Versatility last year and did a repeat this year, with her fellow club member Samuel Smallets placing a close second. Jessica Haynes of Sunbury Halter & Saddle 4-H Club took home third place honors.

Fourth through 13th place finishes were earned respectively by Camryn Bishop-Simpson (JJ's E-Z Riders 4-H Club), Jocelyn Cardi (Sunbury Halter & Saddle), Lauren Thiergartner (Sunbury Halter & Saddle), Megan Kirsop (JJ's E-Z Riders), Aimee Dill (Successful Strides 4-H Club), Isabella Browning (Wild Riders 4-H Club), Ashley Kiger (JJ's E-Z Riders), Alexis Poulton (Delaware Trailblazers 4-H Club), Kody Knapp (Sunbury Halter & Saddle), and Kora Derwent (Cinch 'N Saddle 4-H Club).

Smith will be on the court this winter as a member of the Buckeye Valley Girls Basketball Team. Her birth date falls inside the eligibility line for next year's 4-H season. Smith said she did not know if she would compete at the 2017 Delaware County Fair, but did admit that Versatility three-peat would be a nice way to close out a 4-H career.

Continuing to compete

By Lenny C. Lepola
newsguy@ee.net

Big Walnut-area equestrian fans who attend each years' Delaware County Fair Junior Fair Horse Show would remember Samantha Armbruster, a former member of JJ's E-Z Riders 4-H Club. Many 4-H competitors continue riding as they age out of their 4-H eligibility, but a few, like Samantha Armbruster continue to compete in the arena as an adult.

In August, Armbruster travelled with her horse, Oops I Am Good (a.k.a. Hudson), to the NSBA (National Snaffle Bit Association) World Championship Show in Tulsa, Oklahoma, to compete in four classes, one class being Novice Amateur Trail.

"After 36 total runs of the Nation's top competitors, I was called back into the Top Ten for the awards ceremony," Armbruster said. "The show does not release the scores until after the results are read, so I had no idea at this point that I had won the class. Once they got down to the final two placings, I was proud either way, regardless of the outcome."

Armbruster said it was only the second time that she had shown outside of Ohio; and that traveling all the way to Oklahoma for the World Championship show was already a large feat in itself. Then she wins her class, and earns a purse of over $1,000, along with a World Championship trophy and belt buckle. "Just being able to compete at this high level is a blessing in itself," Armbruster said. "I would never have gotten to this point in my horse showing career without so many supportive people standing behind me. I have to thank my parents, Darin and Rebecca Armbruster, for allowing me the opportunity to continue to follow my dreams and the ability to continue to show horses on the national level."

Armbruster said she also thanks her long-time horse trainer, Holly Donkelaar, for teaching her over the past 10 years.

"This dream would not be possible without Holly," Armbruster said. "Growing up in Sunbury has given me so many opportunities to train and learn from some of the best in the country; and being raised in the Delaware County 4-H program has also taught me so much about leadership, sportsmanship, dedication, and hard work that I still apply to my everyday life, inside and outside the arena."

One final note: The other nine of the 10 finalists in Novice Amateur Trail at the NSBA Nationals were from Texas, Washington, Colorado, Connecticut, Oregon, Georgia, Iowa, Missouri, Florida, Illinois, and Saskatchewan, but right at the top of the results list in the number one spot is "... Back Number 1219, riding Oops I Am Good, Samantha Armbruster, Sunbury, OH."

4-H remains strong at county fair

By Megan Neary
For The Gazette

While visitors to the Delaware County Fair enjoy food, games and rides, the real business is happening in barns on the outskirts of the fairgrounds. In these barns, animals are shown and judged.

The 1st and 2nd prize individuals in each category are typically guaranteed to be purchased. Many of these animals are raised and shown by local youngsters who are members of 4-H clubs.

"4-H provides opportunities where young people learn by doing," according to 4-H.org.

One such young person is 10-year-old Sam Griffin. Griffin showed his first goat in the fair this year. The goat, named Penelope, came in fourth place in the breeding doe category.

Watching members of 4-H show their goats was an impressive experience. These children and teenagers know exactly how to show their goats in the best light possible. To an outsider, it is difficult to see the difference between the the animals.

The judges, however, have no trouble sizing up the goats. Considering many different aspects of the goats, including their width and length, the judges are able to tell which goats would be the wisest purchases.

According to the judge, Penelope was a bit too wide in her midsection to win first place. This extra weight, however, made her quite popular with fairgoers.

Arguably the cutest goat at the fair, she got quite a bit of attention. "Everyone wants to take selfies with her," Griffin said.

Griffin said that he chose to work with goats because "I was interested in them." Also, he said he likes "how funny they can be and also I always like to see goats and thought it would be fun to (raise one.)"

When asked what he learned from raising Penelope, Griffin said, "I never knew that (goats) could twist their heads all the way around and also I never knew they came from Africa."

Griffin's mother, Jessica Smith, credited her son.

"He's being modest. He did a lot of work and he learned a lot."

She said Griffin learned "how to take care of animals, responsibility, and where our meat comes from."

"I learned even more than I was supposed to," Griffin said.
